DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

3. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Harris, U.S. Patent No. 5,068,255 in view of Bayer et al., U.S. Patent No. 5,292,814 (hereinafter "Bayer").

Art Unit: 1796

Harris discloses a seed feed polymerization process for preparation of cation exchange polymer beads that are further functionalized by sulfonation. See Harris, Abstract; Ex. 7-11. The process of Harris is (a) forming a suspension of a seed polymer in a continuous phase followed by introducing a swollen seed into a monomer feed comprising styrene, divinylbenzene and initiator. See Harris, Examples 7 & 11. After the polymerization is performed, the polymer is functionalized by sulfonation using, for example 93% sulfuric acid. See Harris, Example 11. The present claims differ from Harris in that the present claims require a non-aqueous continuous phase and particle size of 5-500 microns. Bayer teaches in analogous art a process for preparation of mono-dispersed polymer particle wherein the seed is prepared in a non-aqueous phase and particles within the claimed particle size. See Bayer, Abstract; Examples 1-4; Claim 17. In recently decided KSR Int'l Co. v. Teleflex, Inc., the Supreme Court unanimously stated "the combination of familiar elements according to known methods is likely to be obvious when it does no more than yield predictable result." In view of Bayer, one having an ordinary skill in the art would be motivated to modify Harris by using an organic phase in the preparation of a seed with particle sizes within the claimed invention because both references are directed to producing seed polymers to prepare mono-disperse polymers. Such modification would be obvious because one would expect that a process to prepare monodisperse ion-exchangers in Harris is sufficient useful in preparing seeds taught in Bayer.
